"Elitism corrupts, and arbitrary elitism corrupts arbitrarily In Pennsylvania the Speaker of the House and two other legislators have been indicted for allegedly extorting money from parents anxious to get their children into a state medical school. Similarly, the Chicago Medical School in 1973 collected an average of $50,000 each in contributions from relatives and friends of 77 of the 91 entering freshmen. The officials have admitted under oath that the money influenced admissions chances."

*IUPUI is the acronym for Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis which includes the large Indiana University medical center and other Indiana University units as well as offering academic programs of Purdue University.

This involves the operating and further planning of a statewide system of decentralizing medical education by having it accomplished in part at colleges and hospitals in various cities, with the entire system being a part of the Indiana University School of Medicine.

A statewide multi-media communication network providing service to public and private postsecondary institutions, administered by Indiana University.

+Dual campus of Indiana University and Purdue University. The boards of trustees of the two institutions designate one of the institutions as fiscal agent.

++A two year college, now largely supported by the state, but partly by the county where it is located.

+++A statewide postsecondary education institution created to provide vocational-technical education by various means, including establishing and operating institutes within each of thirteen regions of the state.

#1977 legislation eliminated the State Scholarship Commission and combined its functions plus others under this newly created commission.

The total for fiscal year 1978-79 appears to be a gain of 17 per cent over the comparable figure two years earlier.

The total for fiscal year 1978-79 appears to be a gain of 15 per cent over the comparable figure two year earlier.

Nebraska's state income tax, based on a specified percentage of each tax-payer's federal income tax obligation, had been in recent years gradually raised to 18 per cent. (The State Board of Equalization is authorized to fix the percentage and to change it.) Effective January 1, 1978, it was reduced to 16 per cent.

The general sales tax was also reduced to 3 per cent, from the former $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. These tax changes are expected to reduce the total of state tax revenues by about \$50 million from their former level.

The appropriations for fiscal year 1978-79 were approved as within the current tax rates. However, the total for higher education was nearly 7 per cent more than for the immediately preceding year. This would seem to say something about a rising priority for higher education.

Although Nevada has generally ranked low among the other Rocky Mountain states in appropriations per citizen for higher education, it is among the few of all the fifty states now maintaining a cumulative ten-year gain of over 300 per cent in annual appropriations of state tax funds for operating expenses of higher educaton.

New Hampshire has the dubious distinction of being the only state among the fifty that adamantly abstains from enacting either a general sales tax or a personal earned income tax. Approximately forty states have both.

South Dakota enacted a one-cent increase in the general sales tax, and the legislature was reported to be considering upward revision of the tax on motor fuels and the cigarette tax.

Purpose of the added general sales tax was to restore the loss of revenues occasioned by repeal of local personal property taxes.

The configuration of the Virginia system is notably different from that of any other state. It has also undergone major changes and considerable expansion in recent years.

Today there are three major state universities, each supported in part by annual appropriations of between $70 and $75 million of state tax funds. These are the University of Virginia, favorite of Thomas Jefferson; the land-grant university now bearing the cumbersome, compound, but accurate name of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; and the much more recent Virginia Commonwealth University formed by merging the old and respected Medical College of Virginia with another urban institution of comprehensive type.

Developed largely since 1966, the network of 23 community colleges provides opportunity for the first two years of higher education in all parts of the Commonwealth.
